River Reclaimed...

It's estimated that over 14 billion logs floated down the Ottawa River over the course of the log drive era. Between 2-5% of the logs were lost each year to the bottom of the river and its tributaries.

In 1997, Logs End entered the picture. With the use of historical logging maps and precise underwater sonar equipment, Logs End began locating large collections of lost timbers felled during the logging boom and perfectly preserved underwater. Logs End is Canada's leading supplier of river-reclaimed, wide plank flooring – crafted from the great white pines, birch and white oak stands that once lined the Ottawa River Valley and milled into engineered wood floors of unparalleled quality and beauty.

Contact Deborah to see the Heritage Collection and choose from a palette of river-recovered pine and hardwoods and discover why this wood is 25% more dense than wood harvested from today's new growth forests. And visit Logs End's new showroom in Ottawa to see the large displays of heritage wood floors.
